Community Policing Before the Crisis

This 4 hour course increases the awareness of one's own micro-aggressions in everyday life. It aims at improving police-community relations by teaching ways to develop authentic relationships between the police and the community. The fee is $100 for one person. Two-person teams pay $150 total; three-person teams pay $225 total. Your check is to be made out to Chuck Claxton, Ph. D. and sent to P. O. Box 1813, Blowing Rock, NC, 28605. Details.

Justice Academy Mobile App??

NCJA has created a 2 question survey to solicit data about your interest in an app as well as what options or functions you would like to see in this app should we move forward in the process. In order to create the highest quality app that we can, it is vital to collect information from both our internal and external customers. Please take 30 seconds to 1 minute to answer the 2 questions. <https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/ncjaapp>

HazMat In-Service

The 2017 HAZMAT IN-SERVICE LESSON PLAN is now available for instructors.

BeRailSafe

The North Carolina Justice Academy is supporting North Carolina Department of Transportation's Rail Division, BeRailSafe outreach with this public safety training needs survey. We need your help in identifying what training types meet your needs and appeal to first responders. Please support BeRailSafe in taking this 5-10 minute survey to build a learner profile. The BeRailSafe Training Survey will be available through July 31st.

New Employees

Cassell DeVane. Cassell is the library technician for the Salemburg campus. In addition to library service, he will have primary responsibility for audio-visual support. Cassell retired in 2012 from the U.S. Army after 21 years of service. He has a B.A. in history from Mount Olive University, and is planning to enroll in the master of library science program at East Carolina University. Cassell grew up in Ivanhoe and he currently lives in Clinton. He is married, owns a dog, and enjoys riding motorcycles—in that order. Welcome, Cassell!

Rodney Harris has joined the NCJA Staff. Rodney is filling the position vacated by Floyd Yoder and is assigned to the Edneyville Campus. Rodney is a 14 year veteran with the Hickory Police department; he has an extensive background with special weapons and tactics and has served as one of NCJA's Adjuncts for the past few years. Rodney's transition into his new role will be seamless. Please take an opportunity to welcome him to our family when your paths inevitably cross.

Also, Casson Reynolds, who joined NCJA earlier this year, has moved to the West Campus. Reynolds teaches Crime Scene Staging, Documenting Child Maltreatment, Bloodstain Pattern Analysis, Forensic Analysis of Shooting Incidents, Photography Basics for Law Enforcement, Property & Evidence Room Management, Shooting Incident Reconstruction, as well as coordinating several vendor courses and conferences.
